"Finding a site for a medical office in the highly desirable South Tampa Market can be very challenging and time consuming. [Carleton] was critical in the process. [He] uncovered every opportunity and offered creative solutions till I was able to reach my goal of owning real estate for my practice. I was very pleased with [his] professionalism, knowledge of the market, and local connections that all contributed to my success."

TENANT REPRESENTATION CASE STUDY

In the fall of 2013, our firm was approached by a physician looking to break away from his existing practice to start his own. He was located in a small medical community with limited options for real estate.

Our team was able to help him identify several sites that would work for his practice. After careful review of each site, we were able to narrow them down to the one he wanted to make an offer on. While many commercial real estate agents may have been able to achieve the same results, our unique experience in servicing the healthcare industry allowed us to streamline the process.
